

In previous posts, some of you indicated in the comments section about the solutions that I support. Throughout the course of the year I try to provide a glimpse at substantive solutions I support, here on the Greeneyeshade Blog.

Last week at the Republican retreat in Baltimore, Maryland, House Minority Leader John Boehner offered a booklet of Republican solutions to the President when he came to speak during our retreat. Everyone ought to have a chance to take a look at these, so you can find them here: <http://www.gop.gov/solutions>

Additionally, under the leadership of Congressman Paul Ryan (R-WI), I have worked on and support, the Patient's Choice Act . This proposal is a bill designed at helping to improve our healthcare system without an intrusive and unnecessary government takeover.

You should also take a minute to look at another proposal I support, which is considerably broader and encompasses health care security, retirement security, federal tax reform, job training, and budget process reform. This initiative is called the Roadmap to America's Future , and you can read more about using the link I have provided.
