

U.S. Rep. John Campbell (CA-48) today officially unveiled a new and improved congressional website. The site, located at www.house.gov/campbell, allows visitors easier access to legislation, constituent services, press releases, and state and district information. The site also features the latest ... U.S. Rep. John Campbell (CA-48) today officially unveiled a new and improved congressional website. The site, located at www.house.gov/campbell, allows visitors easier access to legislation, constituent services, press releases, and state and district information. The site also features the latest in audio and video technology, and includes posts from the Congressman's blog, the Green Eyeshade blog.

“Our new website provides visitors with information about Congress and the latest happenings in Washington in a highly functional and user-friendly way,” said Rep. Campbell. “The site also informs constituents about the many services my office offers, such as assistance with casework and tour and flag requests. I want all residents of the 48th Congressional District to know that we are here to help.”

Other improvements were made in the design and layout in to provide constituent's up-to-date information on some of the more frequently asked questions that Rep. Campbell's office receives. Constituents are also able to view video of Rep. Campbell's speeches on the floor of the House, interviews with the press or sign up for Campbell's weekly laptop reports that give constituents an insider's view to events happening in Washington, D.C. that week.

Congressman Campbell was elected into office in December 2005 and now serves on the Budget and Finance Committees and is also Chair of the Budget and Spending Taskforce for the Republican Study Committee.