

After cosponsoring the resolution, Campbell said, "Clearly, many viewed this election as a referendum on the leadership of Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, and based on reports from Iran, the results of the election appear to be highly suspect. The United States has a moral responsibility to stand up for freedom and democracy throughout the world, and we cannot stand idly by while the human rights of Iranian citizens are assailed."

Campbell said further,

"President Obama must stop apologizing for the faults of the United States and begin actively working to restore stability in the region. This includes preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons to Iran and protecting our allies throughout the region."
